FINANCE AND TRADE.

FINANCE. OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEALS | MESCHIB, September 21, 1863,]
The money market to-day was without an material change, except that the tendency among bankers towards restricting their line of accommodation grows more perceptible or accommonation grows more percepture every day. The weather, which never was more unfavorable at this season for the collon crop, has not only caused this feeling to exist among bankers, but also among our merchants, who are, in many cases, withholding their help from these who but a month see, they ware cause to befriend but a month ago, they were eager so befriend. While this state of affairs is to be regretted, none see its justice more fully than the planter, who, is the large majority of cases, are al- And "Ohio River Salt," ready in deta as far as prindence will permit.

The New York Bulletin of Monday says; The New York Resistant of Monday says:

The marked case in money has continued during another week, and at the close there is abundant supply of money on call at the usual low rates on Saturday. Loanable funds are so abundant that the tear of a tight money market some to have passed away with some purches, and the caution showed last week in the stock market has given place to a speculative movement, which has carried up prices, particularly of the "grain carrying" Westernroad, to unprecedented figures. The best opinion, however, is that the saily part of October will see our usual demand for currency, and, compared with the present, a close money market. As a fair specimen of the way the Redicals deplete the public treesury, it is stated that since the lot of July last, the expenses of the
